

Your hands-on work will help distressed families move from the streets to real homes

Building Homes and Hopes

You will assist construction of transitional houses for families in extreme poverty.

ECELA-Lima

Description

Un techo para mi país is a Latin America institution run by university students that, by means of voluntary works, strives to impart upon society the extent of poverty in which thousands of families live through the reconstruction of housing and execution of social habilitation plans.

Project Details:

- Facilitate the construction of emergency housing.
- Support the development of social habilitation projects.
- Organize work groups within the community.
- Assist training of residents in vocational skills to improve quality of life, health, profession etc.
- Volunteer in workshops for women and children.

Requirements: Passport, All ages.

Volunteer Time Period: Minimum one month, once a week

Spanish level required: Intermediate

Available Dates: According to request

Not only will you build new homes but lifelong friendships as well